- The national representative survey / a public opinion poll was conducted on a sample of 2910 respondents by Info Sapiens based on the questionnaire designed by the School for Policy Analysis under the USAID support (UCBI II)
- The sample is representative by sex, age, type of settlement and size of the settlement / locality. 2000 interviews are the sample for the population of Ukraine aged 18+, with additional boosters for Donetsk and Luhansk oblasts (+680 interviews) and Odesa and Kherson oblasts (+230 interviews). The Autonomous Republic of Crimea is removed from the study, while in the Donetsk and Lugansk regions the survey will be conducted only in the territories controlled by Ukraine.
- The maximum theoretical error would not exceed 2.2%.
- The survey method is Computer-Assisted Telephone Interviews (CATI).
- Respondents were able to choose the language of the questionnaire / interview (Ukrainian or Russian).
- The sample of 2000 is representative by six macro-regions and three boosted regions : 1) Kyiv (city); 2) Northern Ukraine – Zhytomyr, Kyiv, Sumy, Chernihiv regions (oblast’); 3) Western Ukraine – Volyn, Zakarpattia, Ivano-Frankivsk, Lviv, Rivne, Ternopil, Chernivtsi regions (oblast’); 4) Central Ukraine – Vinnytsia, Dnipropetrovsk, Kirovohrad, Poltava, Khmelnytsky, Cherkasy regions (oblast’); 5) Southern Ukraine – Zaporizhzhia, Nikolaev, Odessa, Kherson regions (oblast’); 6) Eastern Ukraine – Donetsk, Luhansk, Kharkiv regions (oblast’).

On Administrative Statuses

- Absolute majority of respondents (68%) agree that if temporary administrations are established after de-occupation, they should be exclusively Ukrainian, i. e. without the participation of international organizations. Only 14.4% are of opposite opinion.
- For the question “What should be the status of Crimea after the restoration of Ukrainian rule on the peninsula?”, the most popular answer chosen by over half of respondents (55.39%) was “Autonomous Republic (as before the occupation)”. One fifth (21.44%) chosen “Crimean Tatar autonomy”. Almost 17% answered “Normal oblast without special status”. It should be noted that only 1.14% stated that Crimea would not be returned to Ukraine.
- Absolute majority of Ukrainians (60.96%) support the initiative to hold an all-Ukrainian referendum on the status of the temporarily occupied territories after de-occupation. Almost one fourth of respondents (23.39%) are against.
- Majority (slightly over 60%) support the idea that Crimean Tatars should receive a separate representation (quota) in the Parliament of the Autonomous Republic of Crimea, while 16.8% disagree and 15.03% neither agree nor disagree.

- Over half of respondents (50.81%) support the idea that after de-occupation, certain areas of Donetsk and Luhansk oblasts should have a special regime of local self-government, with one fifth (19.15%) being against. It is important to note here that the nature of such a ‘special regime of local self-government’ was not clarified and thus could have been understood differently by respondents.
- Decisive majority of Ukrainians (52.8%) think that the “people's militia mentioned in the Minsk agreements in certain areas of Donetsk and Luhansk oblasts may be created ONLY if it will patrol together with the National Guard of Ukraine. Another substantial number of respondents (34.53%) are sure that it may NOT be created under any circumstances. Only 6% think that it may be created and operate without additional involvement of Ukrainian law enforcement agencies.

On Amnesty and Transitional Justice

- Majority of respondents (41.94%) support the statement that the amnesty should be applied to all former members of illegal armed groups of "LPR / DPR" who have NOT committed serious crimes. Still, 36.22% are against this, which makes the public opinion on this issue indecisive.
- 45.26% agree that residents of the temporarily occupied territories who received a Russian passport and took part in the armed conflict in Donbas but did not commit serious crimes should be amnestied. Still, around one fourth (24.03%) neither agree nor disagree, and another 28.58% - disagree with this.
- Overwhelming majority of Ukrainians (73.45%) agree that all those who belonged to the illegal armed groups of "LPR / DPR" should be liable. Even more, strongly agree 58.81%. Only 11.59% disagree.
- The opinions whether the members of illegal armed groups of "LPR / DPR" who have NOT committed serious crimes (torture, hostage-taking, murder or wounding of civilians or prisoners of war) should be released from liability are split: 41.54% are supporting this idea with 36.06% - opposing.
- Absolute majority of respondents (77.18% with 65.30% - completely) support the idea that Russian citizens who took part in the armed conflict in Donbas should be liable and not subject to amnesty. Only 10.83% are of the opposite opinion.

On Lustrations and Liabilities

- Absolute majority (71.2%) of Ukrainians agree that those citizens of Ukraine in the temporarily occupied territories who have obtained a Russian passport, i.e., Russian citizenship, should renounce it after de-occupation. Even more, 63% absolutely agree with this. At the same time, 15.5% are against.
- Similarly, absolute majority (66.1%, with 52.3% decisively) support an idea that Ukraine should impose sanctions on foreigners who have illegally moved to the temporarily occupied territories of Crimea, Donetsk and Luhansk oblasts. Only 16.2% are against this.
- Decisive majority of respondents (58.8%) agree that Ukraine should provide employment programs for those who will be subject to lustration after de-occupation to avoid unemployment. 17.65% are opposing this measure.

- Absolute majority of respondents (69.3%, with 53.3% completely) support that after de-occupation, teachers who worked in schools in the temporarily occupied territories should undergo additional checks. On the other hand, 18% are against such additional checks.
- There is an overwhelming support (74.2%) for an idea that after the de-occupation, workers of the "LPR / DPR" media should be liable. Even more, 59.6% completely agree with this, while only 12.1% express opposite opinion.
- Surprisingly, less people, though still over the half (56.9%), are sure that after de-occupation, only the leadership of the "LPR / DPR" media should be liable. 26.45 disagree with this statement.

- Absolute majority of Ukrainians – over two thirds (70.7%) approve that after de-occupation, middle-level managers of municipal enterprises (e.g., water, transport or power companies, hospitals) and local administrations should undergo additional checks. More than half (51.4%) – completely approve such measures, while only 16.7% are against them.
- Respondents also overwhelmingly (68.3%) support the statement that following the de-occupation of Donbas, people working in local "LPR / DPR" administrations should not be allowed to work in the civil service in Ukraine. Out of it, 55,1% agree with it completely with only 15.6% holding opposite views.
- Similarly, 67.8% agree that following the de-occupation of Crimea, people working in occupation local administrations should not be allowed to work in the civil service in Ukraine. Furthermore, 54.5% completely agree with this, whilst only 15.8% are against.

On Elections

- A decisive majority (54.24%) agree that elections to local authorities should take place no earlier than five years after de-occupation. A bit over 20% disagree with another 20% neither agreeing nor disagreeing.
- Almost two thirds of Ukrainians (65.18%) are sure that the right of residents of the temporarily occupied territories to run for the Ukrainian Parliament should be limited for a certain period. Against such limitations around 20% with 14% - decisively.
- Ukrainians are indecisive on the question regarding the possible limitations to the right to vote in presidential and parliamentary elections for residents of the temporarily occupied territories. While 51.49% think that it should be “the same as for all other citizens of Ukraine, i.e., not limited”, another 46.45% think that it should be “limited for a certain period”.
